LONDON, Oct. 20 .- Meetings of the Bolton cotton mills strikers, which were announced for yesterday, were declared settlement, but that was a matter of opinion, and was falsified by the action of the hand and mule spinners. LONDON, Oct. 20 .- A special dispatch from Rome to the Times says that the Pope's health remains without change, except for an habitual somnolency, which disquiets his physicians. Aldisquiets his physicians. Al though he likes to receive visitors, and is chatty with them, he seems to have ceased to take an interest in the affairs of the church, and almost invariably dismisses any one who comes to talk to him on business. The affairs of the Papacy are now without any supreme pontifical guidance, being conducted simply by the heads of the various State departments and by the presidents of the various congregations. Jealousy reigns among these bodies, and as each does as it suits its chiefs the Papal government is threatened with division and anarchy.

Prof. Cooke's |Manager Replies to "A True Spiritualist."

Editors Raleigh News: My attention has been directed to an effusion of bitterness from a spiritualis-tic source, published in yesterday's NEWS. Prof. Cooke is not in the habit of answering anonymous articles. If "Spiritualist" will bring his ropes and handcuffs he will be invited upon the stage and have the privilege of using them in any manner desirable. Miss Cooke and Miss Crawford, in their "Materializing" and "Claimourant" test "Materializing" and "Clairvoyant" tests are acknowledged to excel any medium living, under conditions that seemingly preclude all trickery. The gentleman says Prof. Cooke is a medium or an imposter. We recognize no distinction between the two, and now if Prof. Cooke should expose these tests so nearly all can do them (which he certainly will), may we not be pardoned for deeming "A True Spiritualist" a deluded mortal, not worthy of the confidence of

Carpet-Bagger Vividly Portrayed. [Savannah News.]

General George A. Sheridan, of Lou-siana, heretofore an ardent Republican, during the late campaign in Ohio presented some strong truths regarding the true inwardness of the case of the Southern carpat-bagger, which must have opened the eyes of such of his hearers, who have hitherto drawn their deas from the columns of the Radical papers. Speaking of the "ostracism" of Northern men in the South, he

If my view of this subject is correct, is it strange that the people of the South refused social recognition to most of us who came cognition to most of us who came among them? The close of the war found the people of the South in a de-plorable condition. Their industries were destroyed, their labor system in confusion, their governments deranged. They had suffered the distress and sorrow incident to war, to which was ad-ded the humiliation of defeat. Sounds of mourning and sobs of lamentation for their fallen sons were in all the land; grief for the past and dismay as to the future filled all hearts. Was it to be expected that a people thus stricken, desolate and hopeless, would open their homes and hearts at once to the soldiers of the victorious armies who came among them? Was it not natural that, coming as we did just at the close of the war, before the passions engendered in it had cooled, before time had thrown its mantle of oblivion over the thousand sad memories of the latter struggle, and while Despair still sat upon the throne of Hope, we should have found it difficult to win our way to the confi-

through Northern Radical sheets, by these miserable creatures that Southern people persistently refused to abandon self-respect and receive or recognize them socially, General Sheridan brought the case home to his Ohio audience in these forcible words:

"Suppose it was possible that a few thousand men, utterly unknown to the people of Ohio, and totally opposed to them politically, should suddenly invade the State, and, backed by a force which they could not resist, seize the government, levy and collect taxes, increase the public debt, plunder the treasury, ment, levy and collect taxes, increase the public debt, plunder the treasury, insult the people at home and dishonor them abroad, I ask you how much social recognition would these men receive? How many households in the State would be open to them; how many men in this State would extend these man their confidence? these men their confidence?

"Again, suppose the people of Ohio should, under laws made by these men, go to the polls and loyally and fairly overthrow the men who were oppressing them, and then have—through the influence, of these controls." influence of these same men—the vic-tory wrenched from them and its fruits turned to ashes, suppose this is repeated again and again, I ask you how much social recognition would the authors of such infamy find in Ohio? All these such infamy find in Ohio? All these things and more have the men who are loudest in their complaints of ostracism in my State been guilty of in the last five years. Do I state the case too strongly? 'By their fruits ye shall know them,' said one of old, speaking with the voice of inspiration.''

No, General Sheridan did not state his case too strongly. He simply spoke the words of soberness and truth. We

Mr. Moody Among the Episco-paliaus.

(Beston Herald.) Whether Mr. Moody has been converted to the Episcopal faith, or has converted the Episcopalians to his idea, the fact is certain that the Episcopal Convention has indorsed with great heartiness the system of lay preaching, and the work of Evangelists, which Mr Moody has brought prominently into notice, and proposes that every parish minister shall select int and proper persons to act in this capacity. It is the incorporation of the idea which John Wesley had at the heavinging of his incorporation of the idea which John Wesley had at the beginning of his famous movement in England, and which he did not relinquish until he found it impossible to convert bishops and deans, in that slumbering age, to the burning purpose of his life. If it comes late in the Episcopal Church, it is better late than never, and it now is better late than never, and it now comes with the weight of its great leg-islative body, and with such a backing of interested zeal, that it is reasonably sure to amount to something. It startles us a little to think of decorous Episco-pal Church members, worth half a million, or brilliant leaders in society, going out to a street corner in the slums. or among the active laboring class, with prayer-book or Bible under their arms, axhorting men to repent of their sins, and showing a warm heart for suffering humanity; and, if this is actually true, lennium is not, after all, a sumptuous dream. And this is what is sericusly proposed to be done North, East, South and West, and these Episcopalians appear to be in dead earnest about it. They even go so for as to propose to open their elegant churches at hours when not used by the regular congregations for the purthe regular congregations, for the purpose of reaching the neglected classes. They desire to enlist the varied energies of all their laity in individual effort; gies of all their latty in individual enough to win men, not only to a religious, but to a higher and freer social life. They go for sisterhoods and brotherhoods and for the social side of religion in parishes. They take a higher range. They dare to say that the capitalist has reduced to say the say that the say tha sponsibilities to his employes; that wealth and social position and high in-intends to make an earnest effort to reach the masses; and it is evident, from the spirit of this convention, that the whole power of the organization is behind the effort. It is not a sudden outburst of zeal, but the sharp sense of The Chinese Giant.

[N, Y- World.]

A Chinese giant, greater than the once famous Chang, is expected in England from China. Yaou San, when last measured, was 8 feet 3 inches high and was still growing. Unlike Chang, whose limbs were vell firmly knit together, Yaou Shan is badly proportioned his head being absurdly small and his joints loosely set. The funniest thing about him is his own way of accounting for his great length. According to his story he was no taller when he was eighteen than other youths of that age; but it chanced that one day, when he was fishing in a stream near his father's house in Kwangse, he caught a strange-looking, smooth-skinned fish and, unfortunately for himself, incontinently cooked it and voraciously ate it. Almost immediately afterwards he became very ill; and when after some weeks he arose from his wards he became very ill; and when after some weeks he arose from his bed of sickness he found that an im-mense impetus had been given to his growth, which, however, did not cease with his illness, but became even more marked as his strength increased. When asked how he accounted for his head not having grown in proportion to his body, he said: "Why, you see I only ate the body of the fish. A dog snapped up the head, which I threw away, and his head grew to such an enormous size that they were obliged to shoot him." Gigantic veracity!

Judicious. [Philadelphia Press.] Washington, October 15.—Vice-President Wheeler has had a long conference with the President regarding the political situation. In speaking on this subject to-day the Vice-President remarked that, notwithstanding the action of the Republicans in Ohio, he still felt that the course of the President in regard to the Southern States was in regard to the Southern States war most judicious; that he did not regard most judicious; that he did not regard the President's course as a golicy, but as a principle of vital importance to the future peace and prosperity of the whole country, and that he felt more assured of the wisdom of the President's course than ever before. During the past summer he had opportunities to ascertain the views of the Republicans, not only in New York but in all pasts of the country, and he knew that parts of the country, and he knew that the feeling as such that had this course not been pursued it would have cost the Republicah party thousands of votes. He felt confident that the President would be vindicated in time to dent would be vindicated in time to prevent any serious disaster to the Republican party. He further said that this was a time when the party could afford to do a little drifting for the sake of principle. But before the next Presidential campaign the President would be so fully vindicated in his course that the party would work to gether in harmony, strengthened by the more liberal element of the Democracy,

We are ready to take these people at their word, and an intelligent and interested public will expect in due time to see the laity acting up to their instructions. Speaker Randall, in his short and ex cellent speech on taking the chair, hit the mark when he said: "Still greater reductions can be made without im-pairing the efficiency of the administration. To have an houest administra tion it should be frugal." If Speaker Randall had amplified this aphorism he would have spoiled it. It is a golden maxim, good for all time, and we would like to see it emblazoned in large letters on the walls of the two chambers at the Capitol. Frugality in public and private affairs is the handmaid of honesty, as extravagance is the temptress to corruption and fraud. A governditures always proves, on examination, to be immoral and dishonest. When our Government was spending the pubmen were accepting bribes with both hands, Cabinet officers were in collusion with lobbyists and thieves, and the civil service was a convicted sham and swindle. The improvement which has been made in official morals dates from the retrenchment in Federal expenses. Cause and effect were never more plainform as a system never could have done, had it been undertaken in good faith, instead of being the sport of sponsibilities to his employes; that wealth and social position and high intelligence have responsibilities which, if disregarded, bring the terrible retribution of communism upon all classes of society.

This is much for a religious body to do. It shows that the Episcopal Church intends to make an earnest effort to that as the proper strength of the army its cost is monstrously disproportionate to its size. The Secretary of War asks for over $30,000,000 for the military establishment for one year, exclusive of all estimates for fortifications and other outburst of zeal, but the snarp sense of duty goading men on to action. This is certainly most commendable in a strong and conservative church. It is one strong and conservative church. It is one the whole 25,000! In any country of the whole 25,000! In any country of

The managers of the Weldon Fair, says the Wilson Advance, are making every arrangement to have things done up in order, and for the protection and comfort of visitors.

Among the many causes which com the liberality of our public spirited citienergy of the Executive Committee, the indefatigable efforts of Secretary Denson, the invaluable aid of the Department of Agriculture engineered by Commissioner Polk, and the display of the military. The railroads rendered indispensable aid, in the transportation of articles for exhibition, the free transportation of the troops and the reduced rates of passenger fare for visitors. To the Superintendent of the North Carolina Railroad, the Superintendent of the Raleigh & Gaston and Raleigh & Augusta Air Line railroads, the Superintendent of the Carolina Central Railway, and the Presidents of the Wilmington & Weldon, Atlantic & North Carolina, Western, and Western North Carolina railroads, the thanks of all who are interested in the permanence of the North Carolina Agricultural Society, the prosperity of the State, and the perfection of our volunteer militia system, are due. Especial credit is due he Superintendent of the North Carolina Railroad, Col. A. B. Andrews, and the Superintendent of the Raleigh & Gaston and the Raleigh & Augusta Air Line railroads. These gentlemen are respectively in charge of over 200 miles of railway each, one extending from Charlotte to Goldsboro and the other from Hamlet to Weldon, making, as it were, a railway cross-roads at Raleigh. They command the only railroads running into this city. They are both native North Carolinians, and gallant ex-Confederates. On this occasion their roads, which are rival competitors for traffic have been rivals in their display of State pride. Such action reflects credit on the State as well as on the gentlemen referred to. It is an earnest of better days, a proof that North Carolinians will work to build up North Carolina. It is our duty as a journalist to give credit where it is so justly due and we wish to place this action on record that the railroads of the State may see that their liberality is appreciated by the people one of whose spokesmen, we claim to be. All the railroads nave done well. More has necessarily been done, of course, by those passing through here. The regularity of the running of the trains has been admirable and among all of the thousands of passengers, transported this week, we have not heard of a single accident.

THE Wilmington Star records the following interesting bits of history: The two United States Senators who erved the longest terms in that august oody were sons of North Carolina. We refer to Thomas Hart Benton, born in Orange county, who served thirty years in the Senate, and to William R. King, twenty-nine years—the former representing Missouri, the latter Alabama. Both held a front rank. Mr. King, as We think it probable, howeve, that a considerable number of those interesting ate. During his occupancy of the chair ate. As predicted by Governor Hampton, he first movement to disfranchise the negro, comes from the North. It is now seriously proposed by Northern Radicals to reduce the representation of the South in Congress by disfran-chisement of the colored voters. They claim as representation in Congress is based on the voting population, the present House of Representatives wor not be under Democratic control but after the negro vote has passed from under the influence of the carpet-bagger. As long as they could be manipulated by Radical demagogues, it was a good thing for them to vote, but now, when the South sends up almost a solid Democratic delegation to Congress, the negro vote is nuprofitable and cannot be

The white people of the South opposed placing the ballot in the hands of the negroes immediately after their emancipation, not from any hostility to the ne gro, but because of their ignorance and ncompetency, and the danger of their seing controlled by bad men to the detiment of the country as they have been in the South. And now as the day of their political vassalage is passing away, and they are cutting themselves loose from the bondage of Radicalism, the rry for their disfranchisement is echoed y the very men who were loudest in fafor of their voting when it would re-lound to the benefit of Radicalism and give corrupt leaders an opportunity to ob and plunder the Southern people. Gov. Hampton made special mention of the Mecklenburg Riflemen, said he "that company reminds me more of the old Confederate soldiers than any I saw on the grounds." Notes of the Fair-Continued. We continue to-day notices of a num-ber of articles on exhibition at the Fair, from hasty notes taken in passing through the halls and grounds. We may have passed over some meritorious contributions, but if we have it must be attributed to the large collection and the excitement naturally attendant upon the occasion, and not to a disposition to ignore anything or anybody. GENERAL EXHIBITION HALL. Eleven crayon pictures, very natural and very pretty, by Miss Bessie Batchelor. Genius and taste directed art in their execution.

The portrait of the late Dr. Aldert Smedes, of St. Mary's school, by Miss Norton, was much admired. It is an excellent work for one not a profession-even to the foam on the lager.

A silk quilt, made by Mrs. E.

O. Harrell, of Murfreesboro, exhibited by Mrs. J. J. Yeats, was very pretty.

Mrs. Yeats exhibited over forty articles of needle work and other domestic manufacture, useful and ornamental. Among these was a picture frame made with a common pen knife, consisting of five hundred picces ingeniously joined and dove-tailed together, forming what the young mechanic calls "the crown of thorns." It was made by a poor young man of Murfreesboro, Willis C. Warren, out though poor he is rich in genius.

There was on exhibition in this hall the outfit of a Sioux chief, entered as a euriosity by a gentleman from Caswell. It consists of a belt, moccasins, medicine bag, pipe bag and a hip cloth, &c.; the suit shows that the owner didn't exult in a very extensive wardrobe. One of the most unique and beautiful displays in this hall was a selection of pen drawings of landscape scenes in the vicinity of Raleigh, executed by Mr. Frank Womble, of this city. They show a genius of very high order in the young artist, and we think he ought at once to engage in a pursuit for which he manifests such an aptness. The display of home manufactured candy, common and fine, and put up in nice and attractive packages, by Royster Bro., of this city, showed what Ralaigh can do in this en erprise.

Everybody stopped and looked and praised, and everybody's mouth watergan.

Won by Alice Lane; time, 2.52½— Carolina hams, contributed by Mr. John Robinson, of Anson county. It was as nice a lot of plump, juicy, well cured hams as we ever saw. It took first the Weldon Fair next week, and a full premium without debate against two other lots of very superior quality. Among the large collection of articles exhibited by Mr. J. C. S. Lumsden, was an ingenious toy, the "Little Gem" tea-kettle, made by J. McNaughton, a workman in Mr. Lumsden's establishment. It is manufactured from a small sized

Messrs. W. D. Blair & Co., of Richnond, Va., through Edward Sulley. Esq., made a very handsome display of cigars; 32 brands, some very superior. Capt. Natt Akinson, President of the Carolina, had on exhibition the beautiful diploma and bronze medal awarded to him by the judges on fruit &c., at Messrs Geo. Allen & Co., of New Berne exhibited the cotton cleaner at Fair heretofore mentioned It is pronounced a success, and our planters would do well to correspond with that firm in regard to this superior machine. In the Agricultural isplay at our State Fair no exhibit attracted more attention than the beautiful specimen of leaf tobacco by Amos Wade, and S. H. Gray of Craven county. It is said to be superior to any exhibit in that line on the grounds. Messrs. Wade and Gray will cultivate tobacco very extensively next vear.

Cotton Weighing.

We have several times been requeste to notice the complaints of farmers sell-ing cotton in Raleigh, of the weights here not holding out with sealed balwound on the arm, which was attended by Dr. Towles. The affair arose in a dispute for the right of way on the rail road, the parties meeting and each refusing to "back," and there being no ago, and yesterday a gentleman men"switch." there was a collision. Thi in hauling a bale from his gin to Raleigh, a distance of a dozen miles, the balances by which it was weighed having been recently tested and sealed by Mr. Lumsden. We have no idea that there is any intentional wrong in the matter, but, in view of these frequent complaints, we think the Board of Trade would do well to have the city scales tested, and, as the opinion pre vails with some that the Board has a rule for deducting a certain amount for tret or shrinkage, that some pains be taken to give farmers authentic information on the subject, as we are inormed no such rule exists.

Cotton in Raleigh

Yesterday there was slightly better feeling in cotton; based on Liverpool-and New York reports the price advanced an eighth, closing at 103 for good midling. Receipts about 250 bales.

Lumsden's tin ware took the premium at the fair, being the best handmade ware on the grounds. And his "Old North State" cook stove took the premium as being the best wood cook

"Blessed are the meek," exclaims the voice of inspiration, but can a man be meek with the consciousness that a dreaded monster is consuming his vitals. We are not a race of Titans. A Prometheus might stand chained to the torturing rock with a vulture perpetually gnawing his liver, and his face ever wear an expression of heioic and even meek endurance. But Prometheus has left no descendats. With vultures (disease) consuming his liver, the modern man makes himself and every one around him miserable. Fretful, gloomy, hypochondriacal, he sees the world and life all ot, the wrong side—the dark side—and whoever dares to assert that there is a sunny side, he regards as an enemy, or at best a mocker of his imaginary woes. Unlike the mythical Titan, the victim of disease is not succorless. There is an arm to rescue—a balm to cleanse and heal. As remedies for this most depressing of all diseases—"Liver Complaint,"—none are more efficient or popular than Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Purgative Pellets.
